Practical, creative, and genuine – Alan gets results for clients before trial and appellate courts, and arbitration panels, across the country.

Alan defends clients, from Fortune 100 companies to individuals, in complex civil disputes.

His practice focuses on the healthcare industry. He represents clients across the industry—hospitals, providers, insurers, third-party administrators, pharmacy benefit managers, and health technology companies—in a broad range of complex litigation.

Alan has successfully defended clients from claims of breach of contract, trade secret misappropriation, breach of fiduciary duties, professional malpractice, and claims arising under ERISA, the False Claims Act, the Mental Health Parity and Addiction Equity Act (MHPAEA), and other statutes.

Clients value Alan's ability to deliver results in all phases of litigation. Alan has tried a dozen cases to completion before juries, judges, and arbitrators. In other cases, he has prevailed on dispositive motions or, where appropriate, resolved disputes without the need for litigation.
