Andy brings exceptional depth to high-stakes litigation and government investigations.

Drawing on a decade of experience as a federal prosecutor, Andy delivers strategic counsel across criminal defense, civil litigation, and complex business matters.

A formidable trial attorney with substantial courtroom experience, Andy navigates clients through government investigations, enforcement actions, and intricate civil litigation challenges. His trial skills have been demonstrated through more than ten federal jury trials, including sophisticated multi-defendant prosecutions and complex white-collar cases—most notably a high-profile trial involving five defendants and over 100 counts that lasted more than three months. His practice encompasses criminal defense, civil litigation, regulatory investigations, compliance counseling, and strategic business advisory services.

Before joining Dorsey, Andy was Chief of the Financial Crimes and Public Corruption section for the United States Attorney's Office in the District of Arizona. During his ten-year tenure as an Assistant United States Attorney, he prosecuted complex white collar matters involving healthcare fraud, securities violations, tax crimes, embezzlement, cyber fraud, and public corruption. Andy started his career with one of the largest law firms in the southwestern United States where he handled complex commercial litigation and criminal defense. Andy leverages this unique background to anticipate government strategies, jury dynamics, and courtroom tactics, enabling him to craft case-dispositive strategies.

Whether facing DOJ investigations, enforcement actions, regulatory scrutiny, or business-critical litigation, clients benefit from Andy's rare dual perspective, proven trial record, and deep understanding of how government agencies operate and make decisions.
