Christian advises construction industry clients, helping with legal issues so the focus can be on the next project.

Christian assists construction industry and government contracts clients on issues such as dispute resolution, contractual interpretation, and litigation. His litigation experience encompasses developing a claim strategy, conducting complex discovery, drafting a wide variety of motions, navigating the alternate dispute resolution process, and arguing appeals. He has worked on a range of public and private construction projects and has represented owners, general contractors, subcontractors, and other construction industry clients. He is passionate about understanding any unique construction issue which may arise during the course of a project.

Before joining Dorsey, Christian also represented clients in civil litigation and administrative appeals
