

Dorsey Legal Arcade: Video Game Industry Legal Updates Volume 1, Issue 1

by Jeffrey R. Cadwell, Connor J. Hansen, and Payton George

Welcome to the inaugural issue of Dorsey Legal Arcade, a newsletter that aims to cover significant court decisions involving or affecting the video game industry. Volume 1, Issue 1 tracks 34 decisions from 2020, covering a range of matters including IP issues arising from the depictions of reality in video games, patent litigation, the enforceability of end-user license agreements, and the challenge of contracting with minors. The video game industry continues to grow at breakneck speed. Incumbent players and disruptive entrants into the market share a need for sophisticated and efficient counsel who understand the video game industry's unique challenges across all relevant practices. Dorsey's deep bench of experience includes attorneys active in IP licensing, IP litigation, patent and trademark prosecution, copyright registration, privacy and cybersecurity, and employment counseling and litigation. In addition, Dorsey's international presence, with offices in the U.S., Canada, China, and the U.K. and a network of trusted local counsel, allows us to serve clients throughout the world. Because Dorsey regularly services both Fortune 100 and early growth stage companies, our attorneys know how to scale their support to our clients' business demands.

The contributors to Volume 1, Issue 1 of Dorsey Legal Arcade include Video Game Industry Group Co-Chairs and IP litigators Ryan Meyer and Stefan Szpajda, trademark and copyright attorney Jeff Cadwell, IP litigators Connor Hansen and Payton George, and patent prosecutors Mika Ito and Jonathan Barnard.
