Seattle – 206.903.2422

Greg helps clients navigate complex legal matters with a focus on strategic estate and tax planning and private and business aviation transactions.

Greg serves as a trusted advisor to individuals and families navigating the legal complexities of wealth, legacy, and family dynamics. He counsels clients on a full range of estate planning matters, including wills, trusts, charitable giving, tax planning, and international estate structures—always with a practical and creative approach. He also advises tax-exempt organizations on entity formation, governance, grant-making, and regulatory compliance.

Greg's aviation practice includes representing individuals and companies in the purchase, sale, leasing, financing, ownership, and management of aircraft and helicopters. He regularly advises owners and operators on structuring, federal and state tax planning, and FAA regulatory compliance.
