Jamie Nafziger Comments on California's First AI Safety Bill

Dorsey Partner Jamie Nafziger was quoted in an Observer article on the first AI safety bill in California. The bill requires California AI companies to follow a number of safety measures, some of which will debatably affect smaller companies more than large ones. “The requirements will mean that investors in some A.I. startups will have a portion of their investments spent on regulatory compliance rather than on developing the technology," Jamie commented. She added that “it would be better to define the harms about which we are concerned and have law enforcement and regulators control all market participants rather than running liability and control through the model developers.”
