Sam delivers a community-driven approach to clients and their workplaces.

Productive workplaces depend on cohesion between a company and its employees. When workplace disputes threaten this cohesion, Sam helps his clients navigate towards solutions that work for everybody. Sam's prior experience working union-side (AFSCME Council 65) and government-side (NLRB, Illinois Human Rights Commission) taught him how to communicate and cooperate with others across the negotiating table while fiercely advocating on behalf of his client's needs and goals. Whether an employer needs help with collective bargaining, union and labor disputes, or employment litigation of all sorts, Sam can deliver results that keep his clients' businesses running smoothly.
