

To Arbitrate or Not to Arbitrate: That is the Question

by Kent J. Schmidt and Richard H. Silberberg

Related People

- Kent J. Schmidt
- Richard H. Silberberg

Managing litigation risks includes thinking about the process and forum by which commercial disputes will be resolved. Yet, there is no consensus among business transactional and trial lawyers on whether arbitration provisions are advantageous in most commercial transactions. In this episode, Dorsey Partner Richard Silberberg and Dorsey Partner/Podcast Host Kent Schmidt tackle the topic of arbitration provisions and discuss how to approach the question of whether and how to agree to an arbitration.

Read the ABA Litigation Journal article mentioned in this episode of SharkCast: Debunking Misperceptions: The Upsides of Commercial Arbitration by Richard Silberberg and Neal Eiseman.

Looking for more SharkCast? litigationrisks.com | Apple Podcasts | Google Podcasts | Spotify