Minneapolis – 612.492.5338

Wynne is a mergers and acquisitions attorney who brings strategic precision, real-world business experience, and forward-thinking legal leadership to her clients' most important decisions.

Wynne represents business owners, executives, and boards across a wide range of industries in mergers and acquisitions, trademark and brand protection, investor strategy, team structuring, corporate governance, and outside general counsel work. Her practice supports clients ranging from emerging entrepreneurs to multi-generational businesses and investor-backed ventures, across a broad mix of industries.

Having founded and sold businesses herself, Wynne offers firsthand perspective on the operational, emotional, and financial realities of building and scaling a company.

While her legal career has included litigation, Wynne's primary focus is on dispute prevention—helping clients design clear, resilient legal and operational frameworks that reduce risk and support sustainable growth. She brings a rare combination of legal acumen, entrepreneurial instinct, and creative problem-solving to every engagement.

A respected thought leader, Wynne has served as an adjunct professor at Mitchell Hamline School of Law, chaired the Minnesota State Bar Association's Mock Trial Program, and has spoken on entrepreneurship, inclusion, and legal innovation. She maintains a longstanding commitment to pro bono service, contributing more than 150 hours annually, and previously founded a pro bono legal clinic in North Minneapolis.

Wynne continues to be recognized for her leadership, community service, and impact as a business advisor. Her practice is defined by excellence, authenticity, and the conviction that effective counsel must be not just legally sound—but strategically indispensable. Clients engage Wynne for counsel that is rigorous in analysis, disciplined in execution, and calibrated to the commercial realities that determine whether a deal—or a company—endures.
